DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to communication filed on 4/23/2002.
2. Claims 1-30 are presented for examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-5, 7-18, 20-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Marsh et al. (7,184,749 hereinafter Marsh).

With respect to claims 1, 3-5, 7-10, 13, 14, 16-18, 20-23, 26, 27-30, Marsh teaches a profile driven method in a computer system for displaying market offerings to a consumer (Abstract). Displaying information about a selected category of goods and services (Figure 9, 720 and 730); receiving consumer selected profile information that most closely matches consumer usage of the selected goods and services category (Figure 9, 360); displaying one or more market offerings in the selected goods and services category that provides the highest benefit to the consumer based on the selected profile information (Figure 9, 390).

With respect to claims 2, 11, 15, 24 Marsh further teaches receiving an indicia of a consumer geographic location (Figure 31, 1463); and displaying one or more market offerings in the selected goods and services category that provides the highest benefit to the consumer based on the selected profile information and the consumer geographic location (Figure 31, 1464).

With respect to claims 12 and 25, Marsh further teaches displaying a monthly savings amount for each displayed highest benefit market offering (see Table 6).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 6, 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marsh in view of Official Notice.

Claims 6 and 19 further recite receiving a request from the consumer of future notification of high benefit market offerings. Official Notice is taken that it is old and well known for customers to be notified of future savings and the like. For example, Macy's® sends customer notification of future offerings to the consumer in order to let the customer know of future sales that they can benefit from. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of Applicant's invention to have included receiving a request from the consumer of future notification of high benefit market offerings in order to obtain the above mentioned advantage.
